Aruba as an Island

Location and size

Aruba is located in the heart of the Southern Caribbean. It is 19.6 miles (30 kilometers) long and 6 miles (9 kilometers) across at its widest point, with an area of approximately 70 square miles (184 square kilometers).

Topography

Topography and vegetation are unusual for a Caribbean island. On the south and west coasts are miles of pristine white beaches that rank among the most beautiful in the world. The northeast coast, along the windward shore, is rugged and wild. The interior is desert-like with a variety of cacti and dramatic rock formations. The island's most famous tree is the watapana (divi divi), permanently sculpted into graceful, southwest-bending shapes by the constant trade winds.

Population

Aruba's population of about 108,000 inhabitants is made up of a broad international mixture of well-educated people with a pleasant nature and a zest for hospitality. The modern Aruban is generally of mixed ancestry, claiming Caquetio Indian, African and European roots. However, the face of Aruba is in continuous flux, with the island drawing individuals from all over the world.

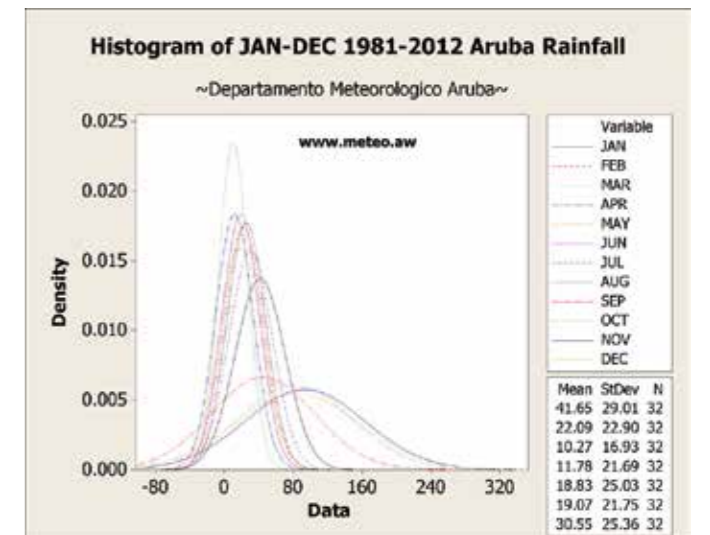

Climate

Aruba enjoys a very healthy climate, making it a sunny year-round paradise for residents and visitors alike. The average temperature is 82 F° (27 C°), with cooling trade winds and the rarity of tropical storms and hurricanes. Aruba lies outside the hurricane belt. The rainfall is moderate, averaging about 20" per year.

Climate Data Aruba

Aruba's aerodrome reference point is at 12.30N 70.00W. Aruba is situated in the so-called Southern Caribbean Dry Zone, and is characterized by tropical steppe, semiarid hot climate (BSh) (scheme of modified Koeppen System), with a discernible dry and rainy season, and sustained moderate to fresh easterlies. The dry season runs roughly from February through June, and the rainy season starts in September and ends in January. Rain showers occur usually during the early morning hours, and during our rainy season it can be in the early morning or early to late evening hours. The lowest average cloud cover is in the month of February and the highest average cloud cover is in the month of May, mainly due to upper-level clouds. On a daily basis the average cloudiness of the sky is the highest in the morning hours and the lowest in the late evening. Aruba is on the outside fringes of the island hurricane belt. Only once every 100 years considerable damage is caused by tropical cyclones passing just south of Aruba, although tropical cyclones or mid-latitude storm systems passing to our north can cause some damage due to beach erosion and coastal flooding.

History

Aruba's earliest inhabitants, the Caquetio Indians, are thought to have arrived here ±4,000 years ago. The first European to land on Aruban shores was said to be the Spanish explorer Alonso de Ojeda in 1499. In 1636, the Dutch took possession of the island until 1805, when the English gained temporary control. The Dutch returned to power permanently in 1816. Aruba is now a separate identity within the Kingdom of The Netherlands.

Education

The schools of Aruba are subject to the same high standards applied to educational institutions in The Netherlands. Around 18% of the island's budget is devoted to education, resulting in a high level of education for the island's inhabitants. Higher education goals are sought abroad or through local educational institutions.

Island Industries

The economy of the island received a boost from gold, discovered in 1824, and aloe, which was introduced to the island in 1850, and thrived so well in Aruba's climate that the island was once the largest exporter of aloe in the world. But true prosperity was not realized until 1924, with the establishment of the oil refinery of Lago, a subsidiary of Standard Oil Company of New Jersey (later Exxon). However, as a result of the reduced worldwide demand for oil and an over-supply of refining capacity, Exxon decided to close its facility in March of 1985. The oil refinery re-opened in 1991 under the Coastal El Paso Oil Refinery Company. In March of 2004 the refinery was sold to Valero Energy Corporation, and currently functions as a oil storage terminal.

The closing of Lago was an economic setback for the Aruban community. Faced with rising unemployment, the island directed its full energies into the tourism industry. The successful development of the island's tourism product resulted in a four-fold increase in visitors, from 206,747 in 1985 to 825,137 in 2008. Today, tourism is the main pillar of the Aruban economy.

Aruba Aloe

In 1890, the first Aloe Vera plants were planted in 120 acres of land allocated to the founder of Aruba Aloe Balm, Mr. C. H. Eman. This plantation, called Hato, at that time was one of many such plantations on Aruba.

During the aloe boom of the early 20th century, the Aruba Aloe plantation was at the forefront of this business and continued to do so until demand decreased in the 1940s. At one point during the boom, Aruba supplied close to 70% of the world's aloe. One important milestone in the growth of Aruba Aloe Balm was the building of a complete facility on the original plantations at Hato, inaugurated in 2002. A museum and a concept store are integral parts of this manufacturing facility. The museum focuses on the aloe industry as one of the oldest economic activities of Aruba. It serves as a national depository for ancient aloe tools and provides information about the history, manufacturing and qualities of aloe.

Aruba Palmera Rum

Providing a new line of quality alcoholic beverages, two local businessmen came together in December of 1965 to found Palmera Quality Product N.V. Initially producing one product, its now famous Palmera Rum, the company today produces and imports a total of 30 different beverages. Addressing the need for more and better products in certain market niches, the company launched a new specialty line. Palmera today also acts as consultant in beverage matters to many of its longstanding customers. With the extensive knowledge of the Aruban market it has acquired over the years, the Palmera team has become a true connoisseur of quality and proudly labels many of its products: "A Taste of Aruba."

KELANTH-ROSE Hot Sauces

The local company KELANTH-ROSE, under management of owner Aurelio Ruiz, proudly produces and bottles one of world's best gourmet hot sauces, branded HOT DELIGHT PAPAYA (mild/hot) and HOT DELIGHT MADAM (very hot). These enticing, homemade, all-natural, gourmet hot sauces are made according to an age-old family recipe and are available in all local supermarkets and food stores. HOT DELIGHT PAPAYA and HOT DELIGHT MADAM are now a must-buy for all tourists who want to take home something special for family and friends.

Aruba's first homemade cigar "Arubahiba"

Benjamin Petrocchi is the first Aruban to locally produce cigars. The Arubahiba cigars are produced and cultivated here on the island. Mr. Petrocchi perfected the art of cigar rolling by working with the masters in Cuba, and, after 5 years of perfecting his technique, introduced cigar aficionados to the Arubahiba cigar that includes the "Made in Aruba" seal.

Political Structure

On January 1, 1986, Aruba became a separate entity within the Kingdom of the Netherlands, an event of historical importance. Up to this point, Aruba was part of the Netherlands Antilles, a six-island federation that also included Bonaire, Curacao, St. Maarten, St. Eustatius, and Saba—an island grouping that was the Caribbean component of the Dutch Kingdom, a constitutional monarchy with the then Queen of Holland having the dual role of Head of State of the Kingdom of the Netherlands, as well as of the country of Holland.

At a Round Table Conference in 1983, all partners in the Kingdom (Holland, the Central Government of the Netherlands Antilles, and the government of the individual islands) agreed to grant Aruba "separate status" within the Kingdom of the Netherlands. The Netherlands Antilles was dissolved permanently on October 10, 2010, with Curacao and St. Maarten transitioning to constituent countries, and the remaining three becoming special municipalities within the Kingdom of the Netherlands.

Aruba's "Status Aparte" within the Dutch Kingdom does not entail full independence for the island. Most accurately, the political status can be described as a Commonwealth of Holland, with which Aruba retains strong economic, political, cultural, and defensive ties. Aruba has its own constitution based on western democratic principals, with a governor to form a 7-member Council of Ministers vested with executive powers and headed by a prime minister. A 21-member Parliament is responsible for legislative matters. Judicial powers lie with the Common Courts in Aruba and ultimately with the High Court Justice in Holland.

Language

The official languages of Aruba are Dutch as well as the native tongue of Papiamentu, which evolved from Portuguese, Spanish, Dutch, and a trace of African (Cabo verde), English and French. English and Spanish are fluently spoken among the Aruban population. Following is a sample of Papiamentu:

Welcome	Bon Bini
Good morning	Bon dia
Good afternoon	Bon tardi
Good evening	Bon nochi
How are you?	Con ta bay?
Sweet	Dushi
I am fine	Mi ta bon
Kiss	Sunchi
See you later	Te aworo
Have a good day	Pasa un bon dia
Goodbye	Ayo

Dresscode

The dress code in Aruba is casual and informal summer wear. Elegant clothes and cocktail dresses are not necessary for a night out in one of the elegant restaurants, nightclubs or casinos. Casinos in Aruba do not require jackets for gentlemen. Bathing suits are not permitted in the shopping and business districts. Please keep in mind that Aruba is a windy island.

Time

Atlantic Standard Time is one hour ahead of New York except during daylight savings when the time is the same.

Getting to Aruba

Airport Information

Queen Beatrix International Airport

Aruba's modern Queen Beatrix International Airport can accommodate commercial jet aircrafts as large as the Boeing 747. The island is served by a number of airlines, and connections can be made to any part of the world. For current schedules and reservations, see your travel agent or visit arubaairport.com. Read important information about the airport security measures. The departure tax for Aruba is US $36.75 to the USA (usually included in the purchased airline ticket). For Bonaire, it is $ 20.00 and for all other non-US destinations, the departure tax is US $33.50.

Aruba's state-of-the-art airport facility is the result of a multimillion-dollar renovation and expansion project that has established the Queen Beatrix International Airport as a hub in the Caribbean.

U.S.-bound passengers benefit from their own terminal building that houses a U.S. INS/Customs facility, allowing flights from Aruba to enter the U.S. as domestic flights.

- U.S.-bound passenger terminal building with 42 check-in counters and U.S. customs and immigration pre-clearance facilities.
- International (non U.S.-bound) passenger terminal building with 24 check-in counters.
- Three-level concourse with airline operational space and one 'remote' hold room at ground level.
- Eight passenger boarding bridges with lounges at the second level and immigration corridor for arriving passengers at the third level.
- Existing terminal building remodeled to form a new arrivals only hall with Aruba Immigration and customs, airport administrative offices and external ticket sales offices.
- Flight information display system and terminal signage.

Although the Aruba Airport has U.S. pre-clearance, it is not possible to transfer directly to a U.S.-bound flight. A transferring passenger has to follow full check-in procedures for the connecting flight and therefore pays the same charges as passengers originating from Aruba.

If in Aruba on transit for less than 24 hours, these charges are waived for passengers transferring to non-US bound flights.

ADA

The airport meets all standards set forth by the ADA (American Disabilities Act). This includes such facilities as bathrooms, hold rooms and check-in areas. There is a fully equipped medical facility with highly trained professionals. Arrangements can be made through the facility for special needs upon arrival and/or departure as well as emergency treatment while at the airport. Personnel are also permitted aboard aircrafts in emergencies and for evaluation. For further information (297) 524- 2424.

Queen Beatrix International Airport offers a wide variety of shops and food & beverage locations throughout the airport terminal. The shops offer products such as duty-free liquor, tobacco, perfume and cosmetics. Specialty shops such as delicatessen, bookstores, souvenir shops and sunglass shops are also available. There is a main concession area which services all departing passengers. There are also shops available within the U.S.-bound gate area and a minimum number of shops within the non U.S.-bound departure gate area.

Animals

All pets need a Certificate of Health from their veterinarian that has been issued within 30 days of departure. Pets from South and Central America are not allowed.

Marriage in Aruba

Civil marriages are now possible in Aruba and must take place at the historic Civil Town Hall, Stadhuis, located at Wilhelminastraat 8. Couples may also arrange a religious blessing after they have been legally married or just hold a romantic blessing beachside if they prefer.

Aruba's Civil Town Hall

History

Aruba's Civil Town Hall (Stadhuis), is a Caribbean-styled mansion that was built between 1922 and 1925. This mansion contained the practice and private residence of Doctor Eloy Arends who commissioned the construction of the building before his marriage to Maria Monica Lacle. The members of the Arends family lived in Aruba since the middle of the nineteenth century, were successful businessmen and upstanding citizens. Dr Eloy Arends took a different course by obtaining his medical degree in Amsterdam and became the first official government physician upon his return to Aruba. True to family tradition, he held many social events and festivities at his house at Wilhelminastraat. In 1960, after he passed away, his son Jesus Eloy Maria Arends took up residence in the manor, later renting the building as a restaurant.

In 1986, the estate was sold to the government of Aruba, together with the adjacent Hotel Colombia building with the stipulation that both the buildings would be restored. Over the years, the building fell into ruin and later the roof was destroyed beyond repair by a large fire. It was restored and combined with the Hotel Colombia building into a new complex, and currently houses a council hall and function space for the performance of civil marriage ceremonies.

Guidelines for the various ceremonies

The following are the guidelines for the various ceremonies:

Civil Legal Requirements:

- All Civil/Legal Ceremonies must take place in the Civil Town House
Documents include:
 - Copies of birth certificate for bride and groom with apostille (state certification).
 - Passport picture page or valid state-issued picture I.D. for Bride & Groom.
 - Passport picture page or valid state issued picture I.D. for witnesses (18 years up-minimum 2 witnesses). Witnesses can be provided locally if bride and groom are traveling alone at $50 each by a wedding planner.
 - Certificate of no impediment for bride and groom (also referred to as a “single status report” and in some states called a “negative statement of marriage”).
 - If either party has been divorced, a copy of the first and last page of the divorce decree(s).
 - If either party is a widow(er), a copy of the death certificate.
- Ceremony can take place in the late morning or early afternoon on Wednesdays, Thursdays or Fridays. Saturdays are also available in the late mornings at an additional $150 surcharge.
- All documents are to be faxed for review and then submitted by courier (i.e. FedEx) at least one (1) month prior to desired wedding date. Please contact a wedding planner or your host hotel wedding coordinator.

Catholic:

(Must call first as this is on-hold until review of procedures is complete):

- Proof that the prospective bride and groom have attended pre-marriage preparation.
- Permission from their priest to get married in Aruba.
- An official declaration stating that neither party has been previously married in a Church is also required from their local priest.
- Copy of Wedding Certificate showing that they have been legally married in their home country.
- Baptismal and Confirmation certificates of both parties as well as copies of passports or I.D. Cards.

- The proposed wedding must take place “inside” the Church building.
- All documents must be submitted 4 months prior to chosen wedding date.

Protestant / Episcopalian / Methodist:

- Wedding ceremony can be affiliated in the local Protestant / Episcopalian or Methodist Churches or anywhere else the couple desires.
- If married outside Aruba, copy of marriage certificate from home country.
- Proper attire is required for all “religious blessings” (no swimsuits or wraps for the bride)
- Shorts are acceptable for the groom.

Jewish:

Both partners MUST be Jewish and need to submit a verification of Judaism from the Rabbi of their hometown. The Aruban Cantor accepts Jewish status certificates from valid Orthodox, Conservative, Reform, Liberal and Re-Constructionist Authorities. A formal petition needs to be submitted to the Aruba Jewish community.

The wedding ceremony may take place in the synagogue or any other venue of choice. The synagogue of Aruba is an independent Conservative-Reform style congregation.

At Sea:

A boat captain is not authorized to officiate at a wedding according to Dutch laws. This applies for international waters as well as in port. The only exception to this rule is if he has been given authority by the country under whose flag the ship is registered.

Land Activities

Arikok National Park

A day of discovery is as easy as a walk in the park, with the island's Arikok National Park providing a glimpse into the island's past and enjoyment of its natural beauty.

A variety of colors and textures are found in the awesome features of Aruba's untouched landscapes. The azure blue of the Caribbean Sea at the horizon is thrown in contrast to the rolling green of cactus-studded hills, the dark hues of limestone plateaus, and the stark white of undulating sand dunes. Its beauty, though raw, rivals the orderly environs of the carefully manicured gardens of the island's resorts. Finding the park, a protected area that encompasses almost 18 percent of the island's landmass, is easy; deciding on which trail to plot can be an overwhelming yet tempting task. Officially set aside as a protected area in 1997, the park foundation has built a Visitor's Center, which sheds light on the park's many natural, historic, and cultural treasures. Accompanied by the constant wind and the occasional cry of Aruba's "prikichi" parakeet, hikers can appreciate the diversity of native flora species. Park rangers can point out examples of Aruba's 48 different types of native trees, some species of which are so scarce that they can only be found in the confines of the park. Other discoveries can be made in the animal species that find refuge under the park system, including the "shoco," an endangered burrowing owl, and the tiny "blenchi" hummingbird.

Leisurely adventure is found on the 20 miles of walking trails blazed through the park, taking travelers past the island's most interesting sites. Suggested trails include the Miralamar trail (translating literally as Sea View) as it is a place to appreciate Aruba from all sides, with views of the sea on both the north and southern coasts, and with the trail also leading past the remains of an old gold mine. Other highlights include the picturesque Cunucu Arikok trail for a stroll past a hundred-plus year old "cas di torto" adobe home (one of only three examples which still exist on the island) as well as huge tonalite boulders on which can be found Indian rock drawings. Similar Aruban rock drawings can be found on the roof of the Fontein cave, the trail to which also leads to the Fontein plantation, the site of a fresh water pond and the original weekend refuge for the island's early Dutch Lieutenant Governors. Rangers are regularly stationed at different locations, including the Fontein cave, ready to explain the attraction for the curious visitor. Intrepid travelers can recharge at the snack shop found along the road to the Fontein cave.

Arikok National Park includes a number of important and diverse natural and historical areas. Arikok Center, the mid-section of the park with access possible from the main road through Santa Cruz, is an area that features the Arikok hilltop, which at 184.5 meters above sea level, is the second highest point in Aruba. The area also features examples of early Native Aruban art and artifacts, and domestic and farm facilities including the traditional "cunucu" (countryside) houses.

Fontein Cave, which contains clear indications of Indian rock drawings, is also found in this area. Yamanota Center, located south of the Arikok Center, includes the highest hilltop in Aruba (Yamanota at 189 meters/620 feet), and the remains of an old gold mining operation at Miralamar.

The park is also home to other important natural areas including the beach cove of Dos Playa. It is located on the coast of the island's windward side, south of which are the caves of Quadirikiri and Huliba (Tunnel of Love). Arikok National Park is now governed by a foundation, which allows it to seek alliances with other nature organizations throughout the world. This project is also financed by the European Union Development Fund, which also includes the construction of a new main road for the park.

More information about the park can be obtained through the Arikok Park Foundation, Santa Cruz 82 A

Entertainment

There are many comfortable, charming and exciting nightspots in Aruba with dancing and entertainment, as well as lively, action-filled casinos. Most of the hotels have their own special theme nights. Tropical nights, beach barbecues and cocktail parties are always available. Attractions at hotels and nightclubs include fashion shows, limbo and fire dancers, steel bands, and an array of local and international entertainers. You can stay close to home, as every resort boasts at least one beach bar and lobby bar. The action in the casinos never ends and the atmosphere is charged with excitement. There are many relaxing activities for those who prefer a slower paced evening; a tropical drink on a moonlit patio under a star studded sky, a quiet stroll on a peaceful beach, or an intimate dinner.

Transportation

Airport Transfers

Transfers: Airport-Hotel-Airport

Taxi Services

Taxis are widely available at the airport, hotel areas, and the major shopping, dining, and entertainment areas. Taxis in Aruba do not have meters—rates are based on destination rather than mileage, and are set by the Aruba Department of Public Traffic.

Example rates are as follows:

Airport to low rise hotel area.....	$22
Airport to high rise hotel area.....	$25
Low rise hotel area to downtown.....	$9
Low rise hotel area to high rise hotel area.....	$9
High rise hotel area to downtown.....	$11
High rise hotel area to low rise hotel area.....	$9

All prices are per taxi not per person.
(maximum five passengers allowed).

On official holidays and after midnight an additional charge to the regular rate is applicable.

Minimum fare $6/ Hired hour rate $45

Arubus

Arubus is Aruba's public transportation service with a fleet of 48 buses. There are two main bus terminals: one in the heart of San Nicolas (on the southern side of the island) and another based in downtown Oranjestad near the hotel areas.

The Oranjestad terminal hosts lines 10, 10A, and 10B with round trip routing from downtown and through the hotel areas of Eagle Beach and Palm Beach. Service begins daily leaving from Oranjestad at 5:40am, with the last bus departing Oranjestad into the hotel areas at 11:40pm. Busses for the hotel areas pass by every 15 to 20 minutes and are marked either "HOTELS," "HOTEL AREA," or "PALM BEACH."

There are marked bus stops in front of all major resorts, with the exception of the cluster of hotels comprised of Divi Divi, Casa del Mar, Aruba Beach Club, Manchebo, Bucuti & Tara Beach Resorts, and Costa Linda—the stop for these hotels is by the hospital nearby.

The cost for transportation is $2.30 (Afl 4) each way.

Aruba aims to keep its visitors on track with all of its attractions by becoming the first island in the Caribbean to launch a public tram service.

Introducing a nostalgic form of public transport, Aruba’s authorities have launched the new tram service as part of an on-going plan to rejuvenate its Capital Oranjestad and encourage more visitors to visit downtown. And in line with Aruba’s green credentials, the tram will run on rechargeable batteries.

Operating free of charge, the two-carriage trams, each carrying 70-passengers, will run on a 12-minute circular route. This will connect the Oranjestad cruise terminal with the Commercial Plaza Shopping Mall, taking in key points of interest in route, such as the city's archaeological museum and its historic fort.

Three trams will operate the route, Aruba having been assisted in the construction of the rail network and the carriages by Dutch tram company HTM.

Aruba has already announced plans to become to become a carbon-free destination by 2020 and is working with the leading organization, Carbon War Room to achieve this. Other plans for Oranjestad include the development of a Linear Park, a 10-mile landscaped walkway from Aruba's airport and heading north. When completed, it will be the largest project of its kind in the Caribbean.
